HONOLULU, HAWAII TERRITORY, SUNDAY, OCTOBER 21, 1906.—FOURTEEN PAGES.

Entered Jan. 19, 1901, at Honolulu, Hawaii, as Second Class Matter, Under Act of Congress, of March 3, 1879.

THE HOME RULERS GET INTO THE CAMPAIGN

THE HAWAIIAN FRANCHISE BOGY

Democrats Aroused by Chillingworth's Slander.

William Mossman presided at the Home Rule rally at Aala park last night and in consequence the arrangements were complete. Probably 1500 people, ladies and gentlemen, were in the audience and they paid close attention to the speakers.

THE LADY DOG TAX.

J. K. Nakookoo was the first speaker. He is a candidate on the ticket for Representative. He spoke of the creditable performance of the Home Rule members during the first session of that body. They succeeded in reducing the tax on dogs and abolishing the arresting and selling under execution order of the court of the furniture of tenants. This relieved many Hawaiians of a hardship which they suffered in the former days. He promised, if elected, to work to amend the law relative to leper suspects. He asked the Democrats and Republicans present to remain as such until November 6 and then vote the Home Rule ticket.

KEKIPI'S REMARKS.

The next speaker was the venerable Kekipi, candidate for Senator. He was greeted with applause when introduced. He said the word Republican is a new one in this country. Under the doctrine of Thurston, Brigham and Whitney the light of Christianity was set burning here and the people became civilized. The Republicans had brought Christianity to Hawaii, but they afterwards rebelled and then took our beloved land away from us. He scored that party for making an open Sunday law and promised that when the Home Rulers went to the Legislature that law would be repealed through their influence. The speaker was interrupted at this point by a woman under the influence of liquor, and the speaker closed by asking for the votes of the party on election day.

The crowd was at times noisy and frequently interrupted the speakers during their addresses. Often it was the women who commented upon the remarks, but generally the men led.

FERNANDEZ MAKES A HIT.

Abe Fernandez was warmly received and was often applauded for his sentiments. Once he was told, "You can't beat Frank Harvey." But Abe made no remarks further than to say "that's all right." In the beginning of his remarks he explained the difficulty between himself and Harvey. He said he was independent and had no string in his nose, while Harris and Harvey were under the influence of their employers. "The Republicans are as bad as the Democrats, for there are annexationists in both parties and they are the people who took our country away from us." He said he was one of those who had been imprisoned for fighting for the flag and the country. He told how cruelly the Hawaiians were beaten during plague time by the Republicans and Democrats, and it was not for the Hawaiians to support the candidates of either of those parties. He lauded Noar, the Home Rule candidate for County Attorney, and assured the audience if he was elected he would "shake the Republicans out of their boots."

Fernandez made the hit of the evening and was loudly cheered as he closed.

REPUBLICAN FALSE PRETENSES.

S. K. Mahoe spoke principally against the Republican candidates who were going around the country promising the natives a dollar and a half a day for work on the roads. He said there was no such plank in that party's platform and it was a false statement that the Republican speakers were making. He attacked the Republicans for their immigration policy in bringing the Molokans to the country and giving them the land that really belongs to the Hawaiians.

Speaker Mossman introduced Mr. Kalaokalani as a Home Ruler and not a Democrat, denouncing the latter party for attempting to secure votes through Home Rule influence.

THE GRAND OLD MAN.

The Senator was fairly well received and was occasionally cheered. He began his speech by saying that the word ballot was a small one but of great and broad meaning, as large as the universe. The Republicans had pulled down the flag of Hawaii and taken the country from the natives and those people came to us now asking us to vote them into office. When we sent Wilcox to Washington, W. O. Smith, Judge Hartwell and W. N. Armstrong went there for the purpose of having the Hawaiians disfranchised, and they would have been put for the fact that Wilcox had a larger acquaintance with the Senators, and he was called in by the committee for consultation. That, my friends, is the bright star in the Home Rule diadem; it was a Home Ruler who saved your franchise. The speaker touched on the immigration law and went after the Government for giving lands to Molokans after taking it away from the natives. He denounced the Government again for bringing more Portuguese into the country and in adding more insult by the introduction of Filipinos. The people are responsible for this condition of affairs by not voting the Home Rule candidates into office.

The speakers were almost a unit in saying a good word for Noar, but Kalaokalani capped the climax by tracing his antecedents back to the builder of the ark and added that when he was elected he would take the Hawaiians' cases without demanding a fee. (A voice in the audience: "I'll see you Monday, Noar.") The leader seems to be down on progress, for he pointed with pride to the Home Rulers who had killed the bill which provided $10,000 for promotion purposes. "When this Territory becomes a State," he said, "and we may have a chance to vote for the President and can elect a Governor of our choice, then, and not until then, will we become Republicans." He roasted Gear for promising increased pay to laborers on the roads. He did not think it was right to deceive the natives by making these statements unless they were certain the promises could be kept. If they could be, then it would be time for the Hawaiians to thank the candidates.

DAMIEN'S SERVICES.

D. Damien, a laboring man and a one-time member of the Legislature, was the next speaker. He referred during his remarks to having introduced the bill providing for the payment of laborers' wages twice each month. That bill is now enforced and the Hawaiians were enjoying the benefits of it. If he is elected to the Legislature in November he promises to stand behind more good bills.

When Mossman introduced Samuel Noar, the haole candidate for County Attorney, he told the crowd that this was evidence that the Home Rule party does not draw a color line.

HOME RULE MALIHINI.

Mr. Noar said: "Aloha nui. I haven't

NEW MANGO PEST FOUND TO BRING BAND HOME

Checking It at Once Relief Fund Question--- in a Novel Manner. G. W. Smith Talks About Bond.

The entomologists of the Department of Agriculture and Forestry have discovered a blight which has affected some of the mango trees west of Honolulu and steps have been carried out during the past week to kill it off and prevent its spreading. As yet the blight has not been recognized as belonging to any known parasitic class.

The work of killing it is done by fumigation with hydrocyanic gas, the tree being covered with a large tent and the gas chemically released within the fumes destroying all parasites within the tent. To carry out the fumigation without injury to the tree, the work is done at night. During the day it has been found that the heat of the sun in connection with the gas is harmful, while at night any harm that may be done to the foliage is confined altogether to the newest growth. To make up for this harm the fumigation seems to have an especially invigorating effect on the tree and the destroyed growth is within a few days replaced by a newer, stronger growth. In one case noted there was a new growth of four inches within six days following the fumigation.

The department uses the same gas, hydrocyanic, for fumigating all the affected fruits imported into the Territory. Although a most deadly poison, the effect of this gas on the fruit is such as leaves it entirely undamaged in any way without the slightest danger of poisoning. A large shipment of apples, received by the Alameda, were inspected yesterday and found to be infected with the San Jose scale, the scale which has been so destructive throughout the orchards of the mainland. A whiff of the gas in the fumigating room destroyed the parasites. So far there has been no damage here from this scale, against which the department has been especially vigilant.

SENT BACK THE ARRESTED DUMMY

The police have finally released a suspect whom they arrested about two months ago, and upon being released the former prisoner was returned to his home.

In short, the clothing dummy which an intelligent policeman arrested and took to the police station was returned to Mr. Lando, the clothier, yesterday in a hack, the charge for which Lando was asked to pay. He didn't pay, however.

"As a matter of fact," Chairman Geo. W. Smith said last night, "the Board of Supervisors could not have exacted a bond for the return of the Hawaiian Band, any more than it could have done so if Mr. Cohen had undertaken to take away a gang of road laborers instead."

"The band is an integral part of the National Guard of Hawaii and, when the Legislature failed to make an appropriation for its support, the county was asked to take over the band, which it did."

"The members of the band are free agents and their contract was an individual one with Mr. Cohen."

"As a matter of fact, this idea of a bond comes up from the old law of the monarchy, which required a permit and a return bond for every native Hawaiian leaving the islands."

There was a great deal of discussion in town, yesterday, of a proposition that the San Francisco relief fund should be drawn upon for the passage home of the members of the band. This seemed to be widely favored by the business men who contributed the bulk of that fund.

It was considered to be in harmony with one of the set purposes of the fund, which was to send home from San Francisco any people belonging here who might have been in distress on account of the earthquake and fire.

James F. Morgan, the special agent of the local relief committee to handle the fund in San Francisco, on winding up the business to go east deposited $2500 of the fund with Alexander & Baldwin there to the order of the executive committee here. Whether or not this amount has been disbursed could not be ascertained yesterday, but it was stated that somewhere about $8000 of the fund still remained on hand in Honolulu.

A committee of bankers is the inner custodian of this balance, L. Tenney Peck being the treasurer. C. M. Cooke, chairman, returned from a trip abroad only the other day. Whether it is the bankers' committee or the general committee, a very numerous body, which has the say on the question of spending any of the fund to bring the musicians home is not quite clear. There is no doubt that the smaller committee has the power to decide on a matter of the unquestioned purposes of the fund. Whether its authority extends to a new subject of relief may be problematical.

Governor Carter will, at all events, call a meeting of either the general or the executive committee early this week and have the matter settled.

EDITORS WORKING FOR SAN PEDRO-HONOLULU LINE

LOS ANGELES, October 11.—A new line of steamships between Southern California and the Hawaiian Islands is proposed by the members of the Southern California Editorial Association, who have recently returned from a trip to Honolulu. Members of the association met yesterday afternoon with the Chamber of Commerce directors for the purpose of considering how the trade relations between Los Angeles and Honolulu might be improved.

H. P. Wood, secretary of the Hawaiian Promotion Committee, will be in this city within a week, and his visit is expected to open the way for something definite to be done towards establishing a line of steamers running directly from Los Angeles to Honolulu.

D. J. Holt of Santa Monica, president of the Editorial Association; Warren Wilson and L. F. Doolittle made brief explanations of the great need for such a line, which, in the opinion of experts, would be a paying proposition from the start.

The trip could be reduced to a twenty-day run at a price that would appeal to thousands of tourists who come to Southern California during the winter months. Honolulu citizens are crying for better freight facilities. "Should this line be established," said Mr. Doolittle, "it would bring that immense trade to Los Angeles."

During Mr. Wood's stay in the States he will visit the other coast cities, but he is in favor of the Los Angeles direct line, and comes to this city first.

The matter was referred to the Chamber of Commerce and will be taken up in a more definite manner. During Mr. Wood's visit he will be tendered a banquet at which representative men will discuss the proposed line.

THE AFONG SUIT.

In the petition of Mrs. Riggs for an injunction to restrain Mrs. Afong from disposing of the Afong trust funds, the deed of trust made by C. Afong to W. F. Allen, succeeded since his decease by S. M. Damon, is quoted at length. It provides for a distribution of the funds to the children in equal shares when the youngest has reached the age of twenty-one years, with reversion to the issue of any of the children who may then have deceased.

Rev. W. Felmy, pastor of the German Lutheran church, having returned, the regular services will be resumed at that church this morning. Sunday school opens at 9:30 and preaching service at 11 o'clock.
